The Tempest in The Tempest: Art and Ecology Across the Disciplines

This interdisciplinary event explores the multiple ways in which European art can offer valuable insights into our contemporary environmental condition, providing both historical perspectives and forward-looking hope. Experts and practitioners from various fields—history, architecture, art history, literature, creative writing, oceanography, climatology, linguistics, and environmental activism—have been invited to select a painting from the Accademia collection. They will engage with it to analyze its ecological themes, implications, and entanglements.

Our aim is to show that art can serve both as a diagnosis and an inspiration for understanding the climate crisis engulfing our planet, while demonstrating how Venice offers a unique vantage point for observing and finding solutions to these challenges. The goal will be an 'ecocritical' itinerary at the Gallerie dell'Accademia, to be published by wetlands press as part of a new series devoted to the nexus between Venetian art spaces and ecology. Keynote speakers include Alan C. Braddock, author of Implication: An Ecocritical Dictionary of Art History; Peter N. Miller, President of the American Academy in Rome and author of The Weather on 9/9/01; and bestselling author Olivia Laing, who will discuss her new book, The Garden Against Time.

The event is part of the Erasmus+ project "Ecostories" (Eco-Storytelling: A Digital Toolbox for the English Classroom for Building a Climate-Just Future), coordinated by the University of Graz (Austria), with participation from Ca' Foscari University of Venice (Italy) and the University of Malaga (Spain). The symposium is co-organized by Gallerie dell'Accademia and the University of Warwick Venice Centre and benefits from the prestigious collaboration with the American Academy in Rome.
